Some of the most vital support for the Bowers comes from the Fellows Membership Level. At $1200 a year, it's admittedly a bit pricey, but those funds allow us to undertake programs that we ordinarily could not provide including Public Programs, Anne's Treasures, Docent support, and so much more. To put it in perspective, one Fellows membership is worth 24 individual or 12 Family memberships. To show our gratitude, the Bowers provides special perks to our Fellows including select seating at our public programs, wine and cheese receptions with exclusive access to our speakers, invitations to the private homes of collectors, and last but not least, amazing travel opportunities around the world.

Last November, 18 Fellows traveled to what I like to think was the “ultimate” trip to Chile, including the wilds and beauty of Patagonia, the legendary and remote Easter Island, and the stark beauty of the driest place on Earth, the Atacama Desert. It was a great way for us all to make new friends and this trip was especially important since it attracted our newest Board Member, Ron Pietersma. We are delighted that Ron agreed to serve on our Board of Governors.

In closing, I'm very sorry to share with you the loss of long time Board Member, Richard Cramer and he will be missed. Richard's wife, Mary, has agreed to take Richard's place on the Board, and is taking an active role in helping us select the best public programs which will be underwritten by the Cramer Family Trust. We have no fewer than 40, yes 40, Disney related programs through the run of our Disney Archives exhibition that will be supported through Richard’s generosity. I hope you will attend as many as you can.

See you at the Bowers.

Peter C. Keller, Ph.D.

NEW ACQUISITIONS

Wood that Can be Beat: A Fijian Barkcloth Beater

Beautiful barkcloth textiles in black, white and brown are made throughout Polynesia with different designs coming from every island chain. In Fiji, women beat the bark of the paper mulberry tree against long wooden anvils with ike (barkcloth beaters) to create thin strips that have a consistency akin to fabric. These are later joined to create large sheets up to 540 feet long. The shape of this beater and presence of relatively fresh carvings along its most worn sides evidence decades of use.

The newly redesigned Polynesia section in Spirits and Headhunters: Art of the Pacific Islands tracks the trade of people, goods and ideas across the world’s largest ocean. Perhaps an unlikely storyteller, this recently installed ike speaks volumes about Pacific migration. Most Polynesian beaters are four sided. They first came to Fiji through trade with Tonga and Samoa. However, in the interior of Viti Levu—once most isolated locale in Fiji—this older style is still used. Given that the style originated in New Guinea, it evidences that the island’s first inhabitants were Melanesian.
